Tellus Launches New Web Site

Key points:

- ➔ Tellus launches new web site;
- ➔ The changes include:
 - an update on the company's operations;
 - a more detailed description of the company's products and services.

Tellus officially launched a new company website today to provide stakeholders and interested parties further access to information regarding the company's operations including the proposed Salt Mine Project in the Northern Territory.

This will not only provide accurate information about our project portfolio but also who we are and our commitment as a corporate citizen to achieving community approval, responsible environment management, uncompromising high health and safety standards and solid investment and employment opportunities.

"A key focus had been on improving our website content so we can start early stage marketing of Tellus's proposed product and service mix to potential customers and stakeholders," Tellus Managing Director Duncan van der Merwe said.

About Tellus Holdings

Tellus Holdings Pty Ltd ("Tellus") is an Australian-owned mining company adding value to underground rock salt. Tellus is the parent of a group of companies involved in the mining, processing and sale of industrial and edible salts, fertilisers and minerals. Potential complementary businesses include storage in voids created by mining and warehouse storage.
